McNees Named as a Best Place to Work in Pennsylvania for 12th Straight Year

HARRISBURG – McNees Wallace & Nurick was named one of the Best Places to Work in PA for 2017 by the Central Penn Business Journal (CPBJ).

It is McNees' 12th straight year being named to the list of Best Places to Work in Pennsylvania.

"Being recognized for the 12th consecutive year as a best place to work in Pennsylvania is not only a tremendous honor, but also a testament to the culture at McNees," Chairman David M. Kleppinger said. "Each of our employees is humbled to be recognized with the award, and we continue to foster a culture where our employees are motivated, feel valued and are committed to putting our 'Clients First.' Service is the most important aspect and the consistency and continuity of our rankings confirm the deep commitment and dedication of our employees to our Clients."

The survey was conducted by Best Companies Group, a division of the Business Journal's parent company, BridgeTower Media. The program is undertaken through a partnership consisting of Team PA Foundation, the Pennsylvania Department of Community and Economic Development, the Pennsylvania State Council of the Society for Human Resource Management, and BridgeTower Media.

The rankings for the Best Places to Work in PA will be revealed on November 30, 2017 at an event at the Lancaster County Convention Center.

Last year, McNees Wallace & Nurick was rated the sixth in the Best Place to Work in Pennsylvania in the Large Companies division, finishing in the top 10 for the eighth consecutive year. McNees was also the top-rated Law Firm in the survey.
