About Tressler's Labor and Employment Group

The overwhelming majority of employment law cases are resolved without trial. Our attorneys are conflict resolution specialists. To assist clients to solve their litigation problems quickly we start thinking of resolution strategies as early as possible. We explore strengths and weaknesses of each case at the outset and start discussing options for exploration of resolution. At Tressler, we help our clients make good business decisions and provide best practices recommendations for risk-adverse outcomes. We also have conversations with opposing counsel to educate them about the weaknesses of their case and to persuade them to resolve matters. When litigation is necessary, Tressler attorneys have the experience to aggressively protect our clients. In the rare occasion of a trial, we have a proven trial record of success.
