New Jersey Attorney Named to National Youth Sports Panel

Alan Goldberger, a partner in the Summit, New Jersey law firm of Brown Moskowitz & Kallen, P.C. and the author of Sports Officiating: A Legal Guide, has been named to the newly formed Board of Advisors for MomsTEAM Institute.

MomsTEAM Institute, a Massachusetts non-profit corporation has a 14-year mission of providing comprehensive information to parents, coaches, athletic trainers, and other health care professionals about all aspects of the youth sports experience.

The Board of Advisors will include representatives from the national governing bodies of all major team sports, equipment manufacturers, and top experts on a wide variety of youth sports health, safety, coaching, parenting and organizational issues, and will work with the Institute to help create and launch an exciting new national youth sports safety certification program called "Smart Teams." Smart Teams will be an ongoing national program that identifies and publicize programs that are working to adopt and implement best practices.

A former referee, and frequent speaker to groups of sports officials, coaches, athletic administrators, and attorneys nationwide, Alan Goldberger provides commentary on officiating and legal issues in the national media. He serves as counsel to officiating and sports organizations and insurance carriers in the sports industry.
