FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Staying Close to Their Philadelphia Roots, the Civil Defense Litigation Law Firm Marshall Dennehey Warner Coleman & Goggin Moves its Headquarters

Philadelphia, PA – August 22, 2012 – After 20 years on Rittenhouse Square, the civil defense litigation law firm Marshall Dennehey Warner Coleman & Goggin has relocated its headquarters to 2000 Market Street. The firm has taken over more than 130,000 sq.ft. of space on five floors in order to provide a significant new work environment for its 350 Philadelphia employees.

While there are a long list of improvements Marshall Dennehey cites in this move, Chief Operating Officer and Chairman of the Board, Peter S. Miller, Esquire, says of the new location, “By moving to 2000 Market Street, we are able to more efficiently house attorneys in practice groups so that they are able to work together more effectively. Our centralized reception area and conference room floor enable us to greet visitors in a more welcoming and professional manner. Improvements to our technology and work spaces greatly enhance our video conference capacity, and we have created a mock courtroom, which will give our attorneys an invaluable forum to hone their trial and appellate skills.”

Marshall Dennehey Warner Coleman & Goggin is a leading civil defense litigation law firm. With more than 450 attorneys serving in 18 offices throughout Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Florida and Ohio, we counsel and defend insurers and their insureds, self-insured businesses and professionals in a wide range of general liability, professional liability, health care, employment law and workers’ compensation matters.

Founded in 1962 and headquartered in Philadelphia, PA, Marshall Dennehey’s unique focus is to help clients achieve their goals in effectively resolving claims brought against them and, when required, to provide an ardent courtroom defense.
