McNees Welcomes Summer Associates

HARRISBURG, PA (May 26, 2016) – McNees welcomes five law students to its 10-week summer associate program designed to give participants an opportunity to apply what they've learned in the classroom to the real world.

Participating in the program is:

- Adrian Dean, Temple University School of Law
- Sarah Dotzel, Vanderbilt University School of Law
- Erica Koser, George Washington University School of Law
- Rachel Sellers, Temple University School of Law
- Erica Townes, Widener School of Law

"We are pleased to welcome four second year and one first year law students to our summer program and the McNees team," said David M. Kleppinger, McNees' Chairman. "Their impressive backgrounds bring a wealth of opportunity to the Firm as they enjoy a real life experience of the private practice of law at a Firm representing local, national and international clients. We use this program to attract and retain the best and brightest legal talent to serve our clients, our community, and our profession."

The McNees summer associate committee works to offer each participant a well-rounded experience that includes a variety of assignments in numerous practice areas, opportunities to observe various facets of private practice, a chance to attend social activities and events; and to gain an understanding of the internal structure and the proud history of McNees.
